H. Richman asked about the legislation going on between public school education and the voucher system and the prognosis for the situation, and N. Wiltshire responded that she did not think it would impact KPPS.

A. Fullard then asked about KPPS' approach to advocacy, and N. Wiltshire responded that we work with local groups on advocacy efforts.

C. Langston asked about the alumni involvement and the teacher talent selection process, and N. Wiltshire responded that she wants to build a culture of philanthropy & also that our teacher selection process is rigorous.

V. COMMITTEE REPORTS

A.

Academics

M. Eigen updated the Board on academic goals and progress with a focus on Social Emotional Learning (SEL). The SEL presentation was led by Amanda Neill, Managing Director of Student Supports.

K. Jones asked about our teacher retention strategies, and M. Eigen shared that we train our principals on teacher retention strategies. C. Langston then asked how we track progress toward our attendance and enrollment goals. M. Eigen confirmed that we do have tracking systems.

H. Richman asked a question about students in private placement, and M. Eigen confirmed that if there are students who would receive the services they need a private placement, KPPS pays for tuition. Then K. Jones asked how post-secondary planning works for students with IEPs.

M. Eigen responded that students above the age of 13 have individual post-secondary paths planned in their IEP meetings.

A. Neil followed M. Eigen's presentation by providing an overview of Social Emotional Learning at KPPS. C. Langston asked about the SEL curriculum, and A. Neill shared that the curriculum outlines what skills students should learn. There are supplemental materials to help further develop SEL and a strategy for execution. A. Fullard asked if there was a role for guardians in SEL implementation. A. Neill said there is a family strategy in place, and schools will offer two SEL nights with families. T. Llopiz followed by asking about the alignment between SEL strategies and student consequences, as well as how many schools are implementing the curriculum. A. Neil responded that there is a strategy to work with the principals to define consequences to match different incident types and five schools are implementing it.

C. Langston asked how students are involved in the shape of the SEL programming, and A. Neill said that we are working on a data collection strategy to refine our focus areas in the future.

S. Jones suggested the board revisit this SEL topic at the committee meeting.
